

HAS DEVICE TO RID COWS OF FLY PESTS

Greenville Veterinarian Is Seeking Patent on Ingenious Contrivance.

A device that will rid cows of annoying flies from flies and incidentally increase the production of milk has been invented by Dr. Theodore Knapstein, Greenville veterinarian. Attorney Mark Catlin has taken action to secure patents on the device.

The device consists of three successive, passageways covered with blankets, through which the cows pass. The flies are forced from the body of the cow and work their way upward into the dome of the passageway where poisonous material in the air kills them.

Either iron or wooden frames support the blankets. There is one blanket across the top and one on each side. Springs and rubber strips keep the blankets close together and when a cow passes through, the blankets shape themselves to the body of the animal, fitting so closely that all flies are removed. Three successive passages of this kind, with open space between them, remove the flies effectively.

It was found by Dr. Knapstein that the cows could be taught to use the device after they had been driven through once or twice and discovered that they were no longer bitten by flies. They even ran ahead of one another to get there first. The watering trough was found the best place to erect it.

The flies work toward the light, and an opening at the top therefore proves effective in inducing them to fly around in the overhead dome. Two jars of a solution giving off poisonous vapor cause their death.

This method saves the unsatisfactory custom of spraying the bodies with fly killing fluids. The cows are much more contented and produce more milk. They are in better condition when placed in the barns in the fall also. Once the flies are removed from the body of the cow, it is said that the animal can go a long time before another swarm congregates. The doctor has worked about a year and a half on the invention and believes it has reached the point where it is a commercial possibility. Several farmers have watched it with interest and intend to have them installed. It will probably be manufactured in a portable manner, so that it can be taken down at the end of the summer and stored away until spring.

PASSENGER TRAIN RUNS INTO KIMBALL TRUCK

Frank Kimball, owner of the Kimball dray line, had a narrow escape from serious injury Saturday morning when the southbound Chicago and Northwestern passenger train, arriving here at 7:26 o'clock, struck a large Oneida truck which he was driving. The truck was almost demolished, but Kimball escaped with only a few scratches.

The drayman had finished loading paper at the plant of the Appleton Coated Paper company, and the truck was leaving by way of the Meade street crossing. Mr. Kimball did not see the approaching train until too late to stop his machine entirely. The front end stood directly in the path of the engine.

KEEPS 'RUM CASES' IN STATE COURTS

Mulberger Act Provides Enforcement of Prohibition Act by State Officers.

Next Tuesday the electors of Appleton and Wisconsin will be called upon to determine if they shall make the Mulberger act a part of the state law or if it should be killed. With only a few days remaining before election, Appleton people are frantically trying to find out what the Mulberger bill is and what it means. These same voters have had several months to study the bill but for various reasons have neglected to do so and many will go to the polls with a hazy idea at the best of what the act really provides.

The Mulberger bill, briefly, provides that enforcement of the Volstead act, which is the federal prohibition enforcement law, shall be in the hands of state officers; that alleged violations of the law shall be tried in the state courts and that the fines shall be paid into the state treasury. The Mulberger bill is modeled on the Volstead act, its provisions are much the same but it provides for a different way of enforcing the law.

Part three of section 1569 of the bill is causing the greatest confusion. That section says that within the purview of the bill all drinks and beverages containing more than two and one half per cent alcohol shall be considered intoxicating, but if the Congress of the United States shall make any other definition of "intoxicating liquor", that definition shall be the definition of the Mulberger act. The congress has fixed one half of one per cent as the maximum alcoholic content and that is the definition now accepted by the Mulberger act, making a real prohibition bill.

The law provides for the appointment of a state "prohibition commissioner" by the governor who is to name the man before January 16, 1920. This commissioner is empowered to appoint his assistants and deputies and the law provides that all police forces and sheriffs and their assistants must assist in enforcing the law. There are other provisions relating to granting permits to sell non-intoxicating liquors and regulating conditions of sale, but the principal feature of the bill is that it places enforcement of the law in the hands of state officers. It fixes a maximum fine of $500 and six months in jail for the first offense and double the maximum penalty for the second offense within the same year. This act be-

What the People Should Know

A Card to the Dear Public

TODAY we make a most important theatrical announcement:

We have just contracted with Jos. M. Gaites to bring AMERICA'S GAYEST MUSICAL SHOW, "TAKE IT FROM ME," to Appleton for one night, Wednesday, Nov. 10.

"TAKE IT FROM ME" is without doubt the most brilliant musical success of this day. It ran five months in New York, six months in Chicago and four months in Philadelphia, which is the longest run in the history of the Quaker City for a musical comedy. In every community where it is presented it invariably receives the enthusiastic indorsement of all classes.

This is the original company and production that made theatrical history at the Studebaker Theatre, Chicago. There is no other company.

"TAKE IT FROM ME" is by Will B. Johnstone and Will R. Anderson, telling in a prologue and two acts of hilarious fun and laughter, the tribulations of running a modern department store.

"TAKE IT FROM ME" is properly called "AMERICA'S GAYEST MUSICAL SHOW." We know of our own knowledge that this play has been a sensation elsewhere. We are sure it will arouse enormous interest here.

The prices for this engagement will be: $1.00, $1.50, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00.

Mail orders are now being received at Belling's Drug Store. Make checks and money orders payable to Appleton Theatre and inclose self-addressed stamped envelope for return tickets.

A program of unusual excellence has been prepared by the Kimberly-Clark company and the Neenah Paper company for the annual safety mass meeting for mill employees at Lawrence Memorial chapel Sunday afternoon, November 7, the last day of "Safety-First" week in the mills. All employees in the eight mills of the two companies are invited to attend this meeting. Transportation charges will be paid by the company. The principal address is to be delivered by Ernst Mahler, general superintendent of the Kimberly-Clark company who will speak on "What Is Ahead?" Another interesting address will be by Al Kroes, representative of the Mutual Liability company of Wausau. Mr. Kroes will illustrate his address with stereoscopic slides. The program is to be opened with a selection by the Ninth Regiment band, which is to be followed by a community sing led by Gilbert Wilson of Chicago, Ill. A male quartette will sing several selections and then Mr. Mahler will deliver his address. Mr. Wilson is scheduled to sing a solo before Mr. Kroes' talk. Community singing will end the program. Miss Nesta Edwards, Chicago, formerly with the Kimberly-Clark company, will give a short talk on public safety at the children's safety mass meeting at the chapel Saturday afternoon. All the children of Appleton, Kimberly, Neenah and Menasha are invited to attend. The program will be of special interest to the youngsters. One of the features will be the announcement of prize winners in the poster contest conducted by the Kimberly-Clark company. Prizes will be awarded by S. F. Shattuck. Mr. Wilson will open the program by leading community singing and will then render a solo. Mr. Kroes will give an illustrated safety talk and then there will be some more singing. The greater part of them was purchased by William Zimmerman of Rockford, Ill., who came here Friday with four double decked motor trucks which he had no trouble filling.

SCHOOL SOCIAL IS ATTRACTIVE PARTY

Woodlawn Pupils Entertain Guests and Fill School Treasury.

There was a large attendance at the fair and box social Friday evening at Woodlawn school, district No. 4. Vegetables, canned fruits, chickens, guinea pigs, rabbits and other small animals and fowls were on display and prizes were awarded by the judges, who were Percy Blount, school clerk, E. F. Letts, school treasurer and Mrs. Frank Letts. Each article was numbered and the names of the winners are to be announced later. The teacher, Miss Rose Stoffelen, found a novel way of conducting the program which followed. She made Wade Letts, president of the O. F. F. club, chairman of the meeting, assisted by Miss Eva Moesholder, secretary of the club. These two young people announced the speakers and musicians and acquitted themselves admirably. There were several recitations and musical numbers, including phonograph selections from a machine furnished by a local music house. Perhaps the most lively feature was the auction of lunch boxes. Bidding was liberal and fast, and several of the gentlemen paid good sums for a chance to eat with the young ladies. The auction netted $38.90, which will be used to purchase manual training equipment for the school.

THE LEAGUE AND THE ELECTION
We learn from the Chicago Tribune that "the league alone is not the deciding issue" of the election. We further learn from this eminent organ of reaction that "the nation is simply tired of Democracy." If the predicted landslide for the Republicans materializes there will be but one fact which caused it, and that is the desire of the people for a change of administration, merely another way of saying that the nation is tired of the Democrats.

In that event the league of nations will have no part whatever in the verdict. It could not have for the obvious reason that those who vote for Senator Harding have no idea of what they are voting for touching the league of nations. To the Borah-Johnson-Hearst faction Harding's election will mean absolute repudiation of the entire league of nations and rejection of American membership. To the Taft-Wickersham-Lowell element it will mean acceptance of membership in the league with very moderate reservations. To the Lodge-Root-Hughes element it will mean acceptance of membership with article 10 stricken out and somewhat radical amendments of the covenant in other particulars.

It is obviously impossible to look upon Senator Harding's election as a settlement, in itself, of anything pertaining to the league of nations question. The course of the Republican party in that event would be wholly a matter of guess work, and while the probability is that it would be compelled by the logic of the situation to ratify the treaty including the league covenant, it is not a certainty. The contingencies of politics are so great and in this instance involved in so many cross currents of purpose and policy, that no one can say what the result would be.

If, however, the election should be relatively close and Mr. Harding should win by a narrow margin or Mr. Cox should be elected, the league would alone be the deciding factor. That would mean that the country had submerged its obvious dissatisfaction with the Democratic administration, and that for once material gave way to moral considerations in the election of president. If the country voiced its ideals and its moral judgment to the exclusion of other factors it would demand ratification of the treaty with American membership in the league.

America's participation in the war, America's purpose in that conflict, leave no doubt as to where America really stands on the question of peace. The Democratic position is the only position which coincides with American purpose in the war. The Republican position may coincide with this purpose when it is finally disclosed after politics is swept aside, but in this election and at this time no one could give an intelligent statement of its attitude.

The election of Mr. Harding by a large majority could therefore mean but one thing that the people ignored the league of nations in making their decision, and it necessarily follows that if the result is close they have given weight to the league issue. Only in the latter event could the solemn referendum asked by the president be said to have been registered.

ONE-CENT LETTER POSTAGE
Postmaster-General Burleson announces that in his annual report he will recommend a one-cent postage rate for "drop letters," or first class matter to be delivered within the postal district in which it is mailed. This ruling already applies in small postal districts where there is no free delivery at the door by letter carriers and the new recommendation is therefore to extend the one-cent rate on drop letters to the large towns and cities where there is house delivery by carriers. The proposal is a reasonable one, inasmuch as drop letters cost the department less even where there is household delivery than letters transported by mail to distant points.

Formerly there was argument against one-cent letter postage, even on drop letters, when the postoffice department was operated with a net deficit. The losses in one department were absorbed by the profits of another. Introduction of the zone system of charging postage on other than first class mail has placed the postoffice department on a more business like basis, and each class of mail now comes nearer paying its own way than ever before. The public ought to have the benefit of this more efficient system, and it is obvious that the zone idea should be applied to first class mail to the extent of service within the postal district where it is deposited, and given the benefit of a one cent rate.

WAR AND PREPARATION FOR WAR
France believes another war is coming. The French government, therefore, refuses to abolish conscription. A service law is now being prepared under which all Frenchmen physically fit must join the colors at 20 years of age and remain in the active army for 18 months or two years. The full time of the conscription period has not yet been finally determined. But France has decided to retain her conscript system, even though conscription in Germany has been compulsory abolished by the allies.

This is France's answer to the reluctance of the great powers to guarantee the world against a new conflict. Preparing for war is an inevitable way of causing war. Nevertheless, if France doesn't prepare, and if the great powers continue to remain indifferent to the demands of peace, France will become Germany's victim. Therefore, France has to make ready for her own self-defense.

If another war comes, it cannot be confined to the initial combatants. The recent conflict showed how futile was that belief. France's acceptance afresh of the costly insurance of conscription must be regarded as a solemn warning to the world. The time to stop the next war is now, before preparations for it gain a resistless momentum. The only way it can be stopped is by concerted action on the part of the world powers, including principally the United States. Preparing to enforce peace involves a certain amount of risk, but, how much greater the risk if war is allowed to come unchecked.

THE THOUGHT OF GOD
The thought of God is one which everybody has. We may not give God the same attributes nor call Him by the same name. We may not always believe that the thought of God is an unvarying reality, but there are few so crude and untaught but have moments when across the field of their mental vision there drifts the thought of God. Where does the thought come from?

The race seems always to have had it. You can go back far enough to get behind some things, but you cannot go back far enough to find a world without the thought of God. The race started with it. Almost if not quite the first act of conscious being was a recognition of man's responsibility to the supreme power that rules the world.

Was it invented? In the annals of the race we have preserved the names of many of the sages and philosophers and statesmen and poets and pioneers and history makers and world builders, but you will search in vain for the name of the man who invented the thought of God.

Is it a superstition? If so, some of the cleverest people in the world have embraced it. The people who believe in God are not all fools and mental incompetents. If it is a superstition, what lends plausibility to the thought? It has lasted too long to be a lie.

Is it an evolution? If so, from what has it been evolved? It was full grown when first seen. It is not the kind of thought that is produced so much as the kind that produces. It is one of the great dynamic ideas of the race.

If, then, it is a thought that everyone has, that the race has always had if it is not an invention nor a superstition nor an evolution, where did the thought of God come from?

The most plausible explanation is that it has come as every other high, straight, true thought has come—from reality. Back of the thought of God is the fact of God. Men have thought God because God is.

THIS FIGHT WAS A PRIVATE AFFAIR
Sacramento.—Damon and Pythias had nothing on John Ruby and Robert Allen, pals here. Punched for fighting in the street, Ruby went to jail, while Allen went out to rustle up bail. In court Allen protested he "didn't know anything about the fight," although he had a four-inch cut across his eye. Ruby had Allen in the gutter and was kicking his head, the cops said.

CONAN DOYLE, PLEASE COPY
San Francisco.—"It's a wedding for a crime," cooed "Cop One to Cop Two here. They followed the white trail of rice for several blocks and through several alleys and then they raided a Chinese store and arrested eight Orientals for stealing rice from the Tai Yuen Co."

WRITING ON WALL TO FREE PRISONER
Paris.—"At 60 years I die a murderer." That confession scratched on a wall by M. Baudouin, found dead by his own hand with probable free Jerome Ribes sentenced two years ago to 15 years for the murder of Baudouin's daughter in law. Baudouin's testimony sent the youth, who has always protested his innocence, to jail.

HEALTH TALKS
BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author.

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writers' names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest are answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

WARTS AND BACKACHES
Warts are never mentioned in this column, but that a shower of letters from readers brings information of many sure and unfailing remedies as there are letters in the shower. And curiously each reader has tried one or more of the other readers' sure cures without any success at all before he finally hit upon his own unfailing remedy, which perhaps the other readers have tried with entire failure.

Warts and backaches have a way of coming and going of their own sweet will. I specify warts and backaches because nearly everybody will know what I am talking about. There are numerous other human afflictions with similar habits, but I am not going to try to list them here. My purpose is simply to accept for two-thirds of all the nostrum testimonials that see the light of day. The other third may be credited to fiction, more or less pure, but always simple fiction. And the creators of this fiction make no bones about it being fiction.

If you happen to use a remedy, especially if it be a queer or unusual remedy, particularly something unique, just before a wart or backache or perhaps an imaginary "tumor" disappears, it is human nature for you to feel convinced that your remedy did the business. And if you are not blessed with much intelligence you will sit down and sign your name to an enthusiastic testimonial, urging all mankind to follow the path you have blazed.

In the voluminous printed matter, peddled by those who have queer remedies for those who have nothing the matter, the symptoms of normality are shrewdly played up as of serious import and trifling disturbances which the healthy-minded would scarcely notice are exaggerated into the gravest diseases.

On the strength of the false assertion or intimation that a lame back signifies "kidney trouble," a whole lot of credulous souls are spending their good money for worthless medicine which purports to be good for such trouble, and since backache is usually a temporary affliction, a considerable number of the victims will presently testify that Somebody's Kidney Capsules cured them after they had "given up all hope."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Water the Baby
I have fed my baby, now two months old, a little boiled water each day, but a neighbor tells me he is too young to take water. Please tell me whether I did wrong. (Anxious Mother).
ANSWER—You did right.

Vinegar Treatment
Will vinegar make one thin? (Margaret E.)
ANSWER—Not unless one drinks enough to get old and wrinkled and dead.

Submerged Tonsils
Do shriveled, practically lost tonsils—no pus—ever produce a neuragic condition in general? Do they have any unfavorable influence on health? (Mrs. W. J. H.)
ANSWER—Tonsils so shriveled as to be submerged below the surface may nevertheless harbor foci of infection and be responsible for various secondary systemic troubles. On the other hand, in early childhood the tonsils are naturally prominent in the throat and, though large, may be innocent of any health disturbance. In every instance it is a question of professional opinion, to be answered by the patient's own physician, not by rule of thumb.

Preservative in Figs
Please let me know whether figs which contain sulphur dioxide are injurious to eat. (Mrs. F. F. S.)
ANSWER—No.

The Apartments of Consumptives
If a tuberculous person occupied a flat for three months and then vacated but did not die in the flat is there any danger of contagion for the next tenant? (A. A. B.)
ANSWER—Not if the flat is given an ordinary house cleaning and aired for a day.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Saturday, Nov. 2, 1895

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Bartlett. Miss Jennie Goelzer was visiting Oshkosh friends. Frank Brooks accepted a position as traveling salesman for Leffingwell & Russell. Rudolph Schwartz was conducting a clothing sale at Brill with David Fustenberg in charge. The deer hunting season opened the day previous and was to continue until Nov. 20. O. J. Brooks, formerly proprietor of the Appleton Bazaar, accepted a position with the Trojan Shirt and Collar company of Troy, New York. It was reported that the price of wood pulp had commenced to advance. A. O. Soule and family of Neillsville removed to Appleton, where they expected to make their future home. The loss on the old Fifth ward school building was adjusted at $2,903 on the building and $520 on the furniture. Fred Jerome Ballard died of diphtheria at the home of his mother, Mrs. N. M. Edward at the age of thirty years. The Shattuck and Babcock paper mill at DePere was putting in six new Warren filters with a daily capacity of 2,500,000. Michael Kreiss, brother of George and Henry Kreiss, died at his home at Redwood, Calif., aged 63 years. The new Fifth ward school building was to be occupied for the first time the following Monday morning. The meat markets of the city were to remain closed all day Sunday the following Sunday for the first time. Koehn & Maxwell were retailing creamery butter at 25 cents per pound.

Today's Poem
EDMUND VANCE COOKE

Here we were in the living room,
All of our loving group together,
And the glow of the wood-fire's warm perfume
Batled the chill of the outer weather
And then, with a sleepy sigh, you said,
"Good night, dear ones, I'm going to bed."

Why did there fall such a sense of gloom?
Why did we sob at the thought of sleep?
When one rose out of the living room,
Must all the rest of the family weep?
When the work is done and the day is sped,
Is it not a time for the restful bed?

Because you are gone from the warmth and light,
And stepped aside from the fire-lit glow,
Because you have kissed us all Good Night,
Why must we sorrow and murmur so?
Why do we call the couch a tomb,
Beyond the door of the living room?

Fish For The Hoosiers.
By Frederic J. Haskin

Boston, Mass. — Our, far inland cities, that scarcely know the taste of fresh salt water fish, are soon to enjoy the same fishy advantages as any part of the New England Coast.

Big business, which has at last invaded the fishing industry, has developed a practical way of keeping fish in a fresh condition without ice for two weeks and even longer. Sample shipments sent from Boston to Chicago and Indianapolis arrived in excellent condition. Fish were sent even to Denver and then back to Boston and were pronounced perfectly fresh at Denver and at the end of the journey.

The men who are thus experimenting with the supposedly impossible are grouped into a corporation with headquarters here in Boston. They have the biggest fleet of steam trawlers on the coast, and they claim to be the foremost progressives of the fishing business. They aim to see the haddock and the cod delivered regularly all over the country from the Mexican border to the plains of the Dakotas, and to make fresh fish as familiar an article of food as beef.

Here, they say, is the ocean, full of fish—millions of them, and more edible kinds than the average American ever heard of—and the United States has been taking from all its waters combined a trifling two billion pounds a year.

But now those fish, who have been living idle lives and dying without any mission accomplished, and those landlubbers who have never taken fish seriously, are about to be brought together. Advertising is going to do it, and money, and a corporation that is determined to take some of the antique romance out of fishing and inject a good deal of twentieth century standardization.

New Shipping Methods
Most important of all is the new process by which the fish can be transported. Details of this process are kept a secret, but the general idea is that the fish are chilled by sea water kept at a temperature just above freezing. Work along this line of preserving fish in a fresh condition was sometime ago tried by the Bureau of Fisheries, and with the cooperation of the Government bureau the corporation here is working out the fine points to make the plan practicable on a large scale.

The company hopes soon to start shipping fresh fish regularly to inland points. It is convinced that the market does not have to be especially created, but that the demand for fresh halibut, mackerel, and other well-known varieties will fully equal the supply the company can furnish.

A single incident is mentioned by a representative of the company to show the eagerness with which the towns far away from the sea will absorb the delicacies of the Atlantic. Of five loads of fish sent to Indianapolis as an experiment, 40,000 pounds were sold the morning the shipment arrived, and Indianapolis joyfully sat down to fresh haddock for dinner for the first time in its history.

But though the fish magnates maintain that an inland market is waiting, it would seem that the general public will need some education in selecting, cooking and even eating fish before it will be ready for some of the varieties so familiar to New England. Otherwise enthusiasm aroused may die an early death due to amateur cookery, and persons who try one kind of fish and find it lacking may be slow to swear off fish for life.

Fish Needs Press-Agents
If the corporation expects to develop early curiosity into a large and steady demand for its products, it will undoubtedly have to put across an intensive course of public education, including street-car cards, billboards, magazine pictorials, and all the other methods of driving facts in order to convince everybody that the superlative merits of fish cannot be ignored.

This would seem necessary, for the gastronomic history of the United States has not so far shown us to be a race of fish-eaters. The coasts have not consumed anything like the amount of sea food the fishermen could catch, and back from the shore fresh fish has always been the same as a foreign delicacy.

Hoover did his best in his food conservation campaigns to interest the country in the advantages and pleasures of consuming larger quantities of both sea and river food, and the Bureau of Fisheries has pushed the cause of fish from every angle as far as its appropriation would permit. The result of these efforts and of normal progress in the fishing industry is shown by figures. In 1917 the United States consumed 20 pounds of fish per person, and now it consumes 28 pounds.

The insignificance of our achievements in eating fish is not noticeable from this until you compare our record with those of other sea-coast countries. In England the average person eats 100 pounds a year; in Norway and Sweden, 130 pounds; and Japan beats them all with about 500.

It is true that our average would be much more creditable if we counted only the area in this country over which it has been possible to transport fresh fish, as practically all parts of these other countries are reasonably accessible to fishing ports. An average of only half a pound of fish is eaten by persons in some parts of this country, and this offsets the comparatively large amount consumed in the real fish-eating districts.

Fishing Behind the Times
The fishing interests here in Boston say that they are practically in the position in which the beef business found itself when it began to organize 50 years ago. Then beef was handed out to the public by the same happy-go-lucky methods which now characterize fishing. Beef cattle were trailed sometimes a thousand miles to the nearest market, for nobody would eat beef unless it was fresh killed. Then organization was developed, and refrigerator cars invented, and beef has been distributed from a central point ever since.

The fisheries industry here hopes to get on a basis similar to that of the beef organization. It has started by collecting a fleet of 25 modern trawlers instead of maintaining a fleet of schooners and miscellaneous craft. These steam trawlers are said to bring in as many fish in one short cruise as a schooner can catch in a year.

Then, the company is taking fishermen's luck and harnessing it to efficiency by means of wireless. When several trawlers set out on a cruise for swordfish or cod, one is apt to strike waters where the large fish are plentiful, while the others may get nothing but a few hauls of small, less valuable fish. Formerly there was nothing for any of the craft to do but take what fortune sent. Now, a vessel in good fishing waters sends a wireless message to the land station, and the message is forwarded to the company's other ships. With the innovation, hauls of large fish have become a rule, and the rule that extra boats occasionally have to be sent out just to bring in smaller varieties. This is regarded as a remarkable turn of affairs, as hitherto small fish have made up the bulk of the catch, whenever the big fellows proved elusive.

Use All But the Small
At the company's plant in Maine, where fish which are not sold fresh are tinned and cured, new machinery is revolutionizing processes of packing. Sardines, for instance, are now headed by thousands in huge chopping machines, instead of in the old way by hand-operated knives. A new method makes it possible to salt cod in 15 hours instead of 18 days. At every point handling fish is rapidly being reduced to a science. And progress is expected to continue.

The company maintains a laboratory with industrial chemists in charge to study new uses for by-products, new methods of packing, and anything else that will increase efficiency and profits. Glue, fish-meal, oil, and leather are a few of the by-products which this company is making every effort to use to advantage. The packers have been able to utilize every part of a pig except the squeal; the fisheries aim to conserve all parts of a fish except the smell.

You can't kill half a duck

"Look here" said the guest — "how long must I wait for that half portion of duck I ordered?"

"Til somebody orders the other half — we can't go out and kill half a duck" replied the waiter.

With that for a text we want to drive home this fact—YOU CAN'T ORDER HALF A VALUE at this store this Winter because every other customer is receiving a FULL DUCK so to speak—there are no half portions to be had.

If the last three years of unholy prices have deviled your diet to be contented with half portions — you need our kind of values to help you recuperate.

Or, if the dollars you have planned on putting into Winter clothes still have the appetite of a longshoreman — there is one store in Appleton to usher them into.

And we are talking to you about ducks — to make you see your duty.

TALKS ON CITIZENSHIP
By D. O. KINSMAN, Ph. D.
Professor of Economics, Lawrence College, and Educational Director of the Wisconsin Society for Civic and Economic Education.

The League of Nations.
The League of Nations is now recognized by the leaders of the political parties and the public as "the issue of the campaign." Our proper position in regard to it is one of the most important questions that the United States has ever been called upon to settle. It is highly important, therefore, that it be settled on its merits and not upon mere partisan prejudice.

Party feeling has had much to do with the interpretation of the covenant, or constitution, of the league and on the eve of the election it is but just to the voter who has not had access to the text to present the essential facts, that he, or she, may come to an intelligent conclusion.

The League of Nations is an historical product. In the early history of mankind, families united into clans to care for their common interests. Next, clans united into tribes. Later, the tribes united to form states and finally states, like our thirteen colonies, united to form a nation. Whether it be the clan, or the tribe, or the state, or the nation, internal differences were settled by an appeal to the principles of justice but external differences, disputes with other families, or clans, or tribes, or states, or nations were settled by an appeal to force. The step yet to be taken is a union of the nations into a world organization which will abolish the rule of force and substitute therefore the rule of justice in the settlement of international disputes. The first five steps towards world union have been taken, the last one will be taken either now or sometime in the future. Indeed, the present effort, the League of Nations, now includes forty nations.

To understand the League of Nations one must appreciate the difference between internal and external sovereignty. The former is the power to exercise authority over matters wholly within the nation, while the latter is the power to exercise authority over matters of a foreign nature or over the relations with other nations. It is the purpose of the league to deal with external sovereignty only. In this field it does not exercise sovereign authority, but advisory only. The exercise of internal authority is to be exercised by the individual nations.

The league is comparatively simple in organization. A council is established to consist of nine members—the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and the following four nations designated by the peace conference to serve until the league assembly appoint successors, Belgium, Brazil, Greece and Spain.

An assembly is established to consist of a representative from each nation belonging to the league. Each member of the league may have three delegates but is allowed only one vote.

A secretary general, and his subordinates, are chosen by the council for administrative work.

A court of international justice is to be established, on plans approved by the council, to which disputes between nations are to be submitted.

A mandatory commission is to advise the league respecting the assistance given colonies and backward people formerly governed by Turkey and Germany.

A permanent commission is established to recommend a proper reduction of the standing armies and the navies of the nations comprising the league, and to assist in carrying out the plan agreed upon.

The purpose in organizing the league was two-fold—to preserve the peace of the world and to promote the general welfare of mankind. Therefore, war or the threat of war anywhere is the concern of the league and it may take action to safeguard the peace among the powers. The nations which are members of the league agree to submit all disputes to arbitration and to abide by the decision. The making of war contrary to the provisions of the covenant is deemed an act of war on the part of the offending nation against all other members of the league. Each member has the right and responsibility of calling the attention of the league to anything that threatens to disturb the peace and good understanding among nations. Arbitration, instead of war, is the method provided for settling international disputes.

The league is not a state exercising power over the member nations. It has almost wholly advisory power. It simply recommends action in case a member or any other nation violates provisions of the covenant. Each member decides its own procedure in the case.

If the United States becomes a member of the league it cannot be coerced by the vote of the other nations since, with the exception of a few matters enumerated in the treaty, a unanimous vote is required in council and assembly in order to pass a measure. Therefore any member in the league cannot protect its interests. If the United States remains out of the league we may some day face the combined power of the forty or more nations now united in the league.

Much more might be said but it is hoped that enough has been said to clarify some of the vital facts regarding this most important subject.

If possible, secure a copy of the League of Nations covenant, study it carefully and draw your own conclusions.

(One week from today Prof. Kinsman will discuss "The Election of President and Vice President.")

FIND LITTLE T. B. IN BADGER HERDS

Tests by State Department of Agriculture Show Gradual Decline.

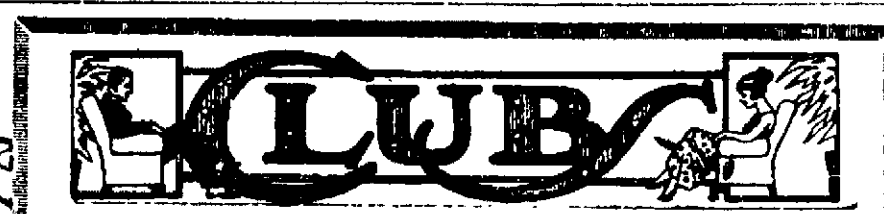

(Special to Post-Crescent)

Madison.—The state is gradually clearing itself of bovine tuberculosis from which it is estimated that 25 per cent of tuberculosis among children results through infected milk. During the month of September the state department of agriculture tested 179 herds containing 4,201 cattle. Ninety-three of these lots passed a negative or clean test. This made a net gain of 30 to the federal-state accredited herd list.

The federal government is cooperating with the state in the attempt to stamp out tuberculosis among the cattle of the state.

The total number of herds in Wisconsin absolutely free from any trace of tuberculosis is now 361, according to Dr. J. S. Healy who has charge of this work. During the month 871 herds passed one negative test. There are now under supervision of the department 1,611 herds.

THE BOOK OF DEBORAH
Deb's Theory of Having Constructive Ideas Looks Good to Me.

Perhaps it was because I wouldn't touch Bob's hand, nor walk close to him; perhaps it was because I made no further comment on his sudden appearance at the gate of the Miller grounds, that Bob grew nervous and kept on talking about Katherine's wish to adopt her baby. Bob said so much that, to my suspicious mind, he said too much. I recalled the French saying: "Who excuses himself, accuses himself."

If there were nothing important to explain, why did my usually reticent husband explain at length and elaborately?

An hour later, I was vainly trying to myself to sleep by counting monotonously, or by spelling out familiar poems, letter by letter. But nothing could charm me into the forgetfulness of slumber.

I felt alone, abandoned; and what I really wanted most was to forget my isolation. When Bob and I are at one, he may travel to the ends of the earth, and I am not lonesome; but when we are apart, I feel like a lost soul, as though Bob sleeps in the room next my own.

My unruly mind wandered to other women's shoes. Had dear Mother Lorimer felt isolated, instead of indulging herself with the Queen of Smiles? Had Mrs. Best, Ann's mother, felt isolated instead of righteously wrathful when she first discovered Augustus Best?

And would poor Deborah suffer without Jim's love—suffer all her life from a luncheon I could hardly endure for a night?

Maybe Deb was right. Perhaps it would be wiser for her to marry Ted Moore or Paul Van Eyck and have the companionship of a perfectly nice and devoted husband rather than live in the horrors of solitude the rest of her days, for an ideal love, which might vanish, might perish when she most needed it.

Deb's theory about substituting a constructive for a destructive idea looked good to me—in the dark of the night. If Bob didn't grow friendly pretty soon—well, I would let the consequences fall on his own smooth shining black pate.

That Bob actually, was amazed by, and interested in my new mood of detachment was shown next morning by his solicitude for my comfort.

I rewarded him by being tolerant—nothing more. In accordance with my resolve to seem indifferent to our quarrel, and probably because I was terribly tired from the ordeal, it was easy for me to drop my natural spontaneity and my usual enthusiasms about small homey matters. Bob asked more than once:

"Are you sick, Jane?" Or, "Does your head ache this morning?"

"I'm perfectly all right, Bob!" I assured him. "Don't tax yourself with a single worry about me."

A troubled sigh from him followed my refusal to drive his car down town after breakfast.

"Deb is coming over early," I explained.

Judging from own feelings, our differences had not yet passed the mending stage. I had accepted Bob's reason for going to see Katherine, but I demanded that he make the first gesture toward our reconciliation.

Mischance in a strange disguise was on the way to destroy my happiness for many days. Seeing Deb's car at my door, Ann ran over to show off her pet bonnie and some of its little tricks.

SHUT OFF COAL TO FOX RIVER VALLEY

Lake Transportation Is Stopped With Issuance of Federal Order.

Green Bay, Wis.—Just when prospects were bright for normal coal receipts and a winter without a fuel shortage, along comes the abrogation of order No. 10 which means that incoming coal by the lake route is a thing of the past for 1920.

Green Bay dealers, supplying the Fox river valley and much of this section of the northwest, agree that Wisconsin is facing another perilous situation. The docks here are almost empty and the lake cargoes are being sent out in all directions as soon as they were unloaded at the port.

A Critical Situation
Fred Jabout, whose company supplies "a great territory," declared the situation was hopeless unless the interstate commerce commission should see fit to change its decision.

"Our supply on hand is less than in past years and the demand is greater. I think this part of the country faces a severe fuel shortage. It is a serious situation and I can not understand the action of the commission."

It is declared that the docks along Lake Erie are bare for the lake vessels have been hauling the fuel away as fast as the trains dumped it there from the mines. In fact all records have been broken for the speed in which the coal has been transported the last few months.

Changed Order a Surprise
The abrogation of the order was a big surprise to coal men here. Their hopes were just brightening to the point where they were predicting that the supply would reach normal unless had weather set in. It had been hoped that the priority would remain on until lake navigation was ended for the year.

The anthracite shortage is particularly felt in this section. Most of the furnaces in Green Bay are fired with anthracite, and many basements are yet bare.

The wives of many English fishermen keep a black cat in the house to assure their husband's safety at sea.

Iron ore deposits in Iceland, which a Danish company proposes to develop, are said to contain from 20 to 30 million tons of ore.

Alabama, Texas and Virginia furnish more than one-half of the peanuts; Wisconsin and Illinois 41 per cent of the clover seed.

Sister Mary's Kitchen

When it is necessary to patch badly soiled or otherwise defaced wallpaper, tear the fresh paper that is to be used for the patch.

If the paper is torn rather than cut there is a rough edge that can be pasted down closely making no ridge. The patch will, of course, be unfaded by light, but aside from this, if the pattern be carefully matched, there will be little evidence of patching.

Menu for Tomorrow
BREAKFAST—Baked apples, cereal with milk, toast, grape jelly, coffee.
LUNCHEON—Open sandwiches, fruit tart, tea.
DINNER—Stuffed pork chops, candied sweet potatoes, apple sauce, creamed turnips, grape pie, coffee.

My Own Recipes
By the addition of the grape jelly in the breakfast menu, a pleasant tartness is given to an otherwise uninteresting breakfast. The baked apples and cereal have a sameness of taste about them. Both foods are nourishing and combine perfectly, but for the sake of the jaded breakfast appetite, a piquant note should be introduced.

CREAM CHEESE DRESSING
4 tablespoons mayonnaise
2 tablespoons heavy cream
1 cream cheese
1 tablespoon chopped pimientos
Work the cheese with the cream to a smooth paste. Add pimientos. Add this mixture to the mayonnaise and mix thoroughly.

AT LEAST PART OF THE EAR WILL BE VISIBLE
Chicago—Chicago men today are able to see a bit of femininity they haven't gazed upon for a long time—a woman's ears.

They are showing 'em here now, all but a little bit of the top which is still covered by hair.

Madame Louise, renowned beautician, told the United Press today that women generally were unveiling a bit of their ears.

"It would be too immodest and shocking to show the whole ear," she said.

"The upper portion will remain a mystery for a while."

On the job of the shell-pink ear, the girls are adding a little dash of rouge to make it pinker. Madame Louise said.

"It adds charm and a subtle suggestion of vivacity," the Madame explained.

Madison—One highly important provision made by the last legislature to aid in eradicating tuberculosis from among the cattle of the state, has not been taken advantage of as fully as it might well have been, the state department of agriculture reports.

It is the provision which authorizes the testing of cattle by the state in cheese factory or creamery groups, and groups made up of farmer's associations.

Under this provision if there are 150 head and less than 300 head in any group the state department of agriculture will bear half the expense of testing. If there are 300 head or more in any group the department of agriculture will bear the total expense of testing.

The state department of agriculture is surprised that more factory groups especially do not take advantage of this, inasmuch as an official statement from any factory that its cheese or butter was from herds absolutely free of tuberculosis would be a big advertisement for the product.

WOMEN NEED NOT STAND IT

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Surely Removes Suffering and Pain. Here is Proof.

St. Paul, Neb.—"I suffered with periodical pain for about four years so that I was unable to do my work as times. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it. It soon stopped all my suffering so that I am now feeling fine in every way. I recommend your medicine to my friends who have similar troubles. You may publish this letter for the benefit of other women."—Mrs. WILL THOMAS, St. Paul, Neb.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and today holds the record for being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

For forty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who now are free from suffering by its use.

NEWS OF INTEREST FROM COUNTY AND STATE

BRIGHTER FUTURE FOR CONTRACTORS

Quarterly Report Shows a Decided Increase in Building Activity.

(Special to Post-Crescent)
Madison—Optimistic views of the future of building construction in Wisconsin are expressed in the quarterly report of the bureau of plumbing and domestic engineering, rendered to the state engineering department. Speaking of the plumbing industry, Frank R. King, director of the bureau, characterizes conditions as to materials and labor as assuming a more normal aspect, although new

WOOL GROWERS PLAN TO RECOVER EXCESS PROFITS

(Special to Post-Crescent)
Madison—A movement was started here late Thursday evening at a conference in the office of the Division of Markets, to secure approximately $100,000 for the wool growers of Wisconsin which has been collected as excess profits from the dealers, by the Federal Bureau of Markets. The Wisconsin Division of Pledge Wool States Growers Association, at the conference appointed George McKerrrow, of the Wool Growers Association, L. G. Foster, assistant director of the Division of Markets and A. W. Hopkins, of the College of Agriculture, University of Wisconsin as a committee to take definite steps to recover the Wisconsin share of the $1,500,000 excess profits taken last year by the dealers from the farmers of the middle western states.

Definite steps were taken favoring a joint pool of all middle western states for the coming year into an organization to market 100,000,000 pounds of wool grown by the farmers of the wool states.

Construction is somewhat below the average for this period of the year. The general conditions in the construction field, however, mark this year "phenomenal" in the plumbing industry, the report adds.

"Difficulties in securing a full line of materials have for the past three years been a handicap," says the report, "but now are gradually becoming more stable. Cost of certain plumbing materials are showing appreciable declines while on the other hand advances have occurred on a few minor items. The result appears, however, to make for a general reduction in costs and the tendency is favorable for extended activities in the plumbing industry and for the revival of all kinds of building, especially small structures."

The report notes the completion of a code governing installations of chemical and of dry closets in rural schools. Minimum requirements are formulated, and have the effect of law.

The report also reviews the work done in extending the water supply at the state fair park and installing greatly increased comfort station facilities. It recommends that these be still further augmented in order to meet the needs of a daily attendance of 150,000. The heaviest day at this year's fair was 115,000. Assurance has been given by the city of West Allis, the city of Milwaukee cooperating, that an additional service main of 20-inch size will be extended from Milwaukee to West Allis before next year's fair, which will insure adequate volume and pressure for the fair grounds.

Sanitary facilities at county fairs were reported as gradually improving but that much yet remains to be done by many fair managements.

POINTS SHOTGUN IN FUN; CHUM IS LIFE CRIPPLE

Birchwood—That he "didn't know it was loaded" was responsible for gunshot wounds to Clifton Shara that may make him a cripple for life. Young Shara and Volney Burrows had just returned from a hunting trip and were playing with a 12 gauge shotgun. In a spirit of fun Burrows pointed the gun at Shara, pulled the trigger, and the charge passed through the right leg of Shara and lodged in the left leg. The leg will probably be stiff.

HURLEY CASE AID TO MULBERGER LAW

State Prohibition Officers Use More Judgment in Enforcing Rum Laws.

(Special to Post-Crescent)
Madison—The verdict of the coroner's jury in the Hurley "boozing" shooting affair, charging the federal agents with murder, is believed here to prestage the ratification of the Mulberger law at the election next week.

The Mulberger law provides for the enforcement of the prohibition laws by state officials and prohibition commissioners. Hazelberg and his assistants have done a great deal of very effective work in the state without trouble of any kind. Not once has a state prohibition officer been compelled to draw a gun, let alone to use it, while the federal officials have killed two men in this state within the last few weeks and are said to be very ready to flash a gun to enforce their demands.

The Mulberger law would permit 25 per cent beer if the federal law would, or if the federal law did not attempt to define what is intoxicating liquor. But aside from that it is held by both the so-called wets and dries to be a fair measure and it is generally believed here it will be ratified next week, although it has been the history of measures submitted to the electors or referendum that only a very small percentage of the voters vote either for or against the measure.

Article 10 Not So Bad As Painted By Politicians

Peculiar Thing About Article 10 Is the Way Opinion Has Changed About It.

(President Samuel Plantz)

Article X is the red rag which especially arouses the wrath of the opponents of the League of Nations. To them it is much like Josh Billings' scarecrow which was so awfully scary that when the crows saw it they brought back to the field all the corn they had stolen. They seem to regard it as the open way to all sorts of national calamity and world disaster. We are told it will make wars rather than avert them, that it will send boys to fight and die in all parts of the world, that it violates the American constitution, and that it sacrifices our sovereignty to a supernatural power. It is this article upon which in the long drawn out senate debate the "antis" especially concentrated their fire.

Three things are very interesting in view of the fuss and fury that has gathered about Article X. One is the very able men who are diametrically opposed in respect to its interpretation and desirability. Great lawyers like ex-President Taft, ex-Attorney General G. W. Wickersham, Senator John Sharp Williams, Attorney General Palmer, and great students of international law like Dr. George Wilson, Dr. Paul Reinsch and President A. Lawrence Lowell emphatically favor the article and regard it as "perhaps the most important article of the covenant," while on the other hand very able lawyers like ex-Attorney General Knox, Senator Lodge, Senator Lenroot and others find in it the gravest objections and dangers. The second notable thing is the way able men have vacillated in judgment concerning it. Thus Mr. Root on March 31st, 1918, advised the retention of Article X. Later he said it was advisable in view of conditions in Europe to retain it for a time, but suggested a five year limit after which it should be reconsidered, any nation being given the chance to withdraw from its obligations. Recently he has come out squarely against it. Mr. Hoover in an address at Leland Stanford University on October 2, 1919, said of it: "There is no obligation for the United States to engage in military affairs." Recently he has expressed the opinion that it pledges us to the use of military force. Not long ago President Schurman of Cornell University said that he believed the public "wants the peace treaty ratified without any textual modification." He has various modifications and especially on Article X which he thinks necessary. The third interesting thing is that Article X which has developed such an uproar in the Senate has been accepted with almost no criticism by the leading statesmen of forty-one of the leading nations of the earth. Any obligation which this article puts upon us it puts upon all the other nations equally; but none have seen in it the terrible menace which some of our politicians have found. Is not the judgment of the greater part of the civilized world more significant than that of a few American statesmen.

blinded by political antipathies and party interests and wanting to win an election?

The writer of this article has been willing to see Article X eliminated, if that would secure the adoption of the League; but he does not share the apprehensions of its critics concerning it.

What is Article X and what fangs and venom are convulsed in its words? Analyzing it we note this: It is an agreement between the League members to undertake to preserve peace. It limits this agreement to wars of external aggression. It further limits it to efforts to take another nation's territory or destroy its existence. It agrees that in case of any such aggression, or danger of such aggression the Council shall advise not command any nation upon the terms by which the obligation shall be fulfilled.

Let us take the reverse of the Article and see how it would read. It would be something like this: The members of the League agree to permit wars of external aggression for the purpose of stealing another nation's territory or destroying its existence as a state; and the Council shall do nothing to interfere with such international robbery and murder. Do you who race at Article X want to subscribe to this? Do you want the worse type of wars to go on? Have you no interest in international justice? If you have, then why is it reasonable for self-respecting nations that realize the injustice of wars of the kind covered in this Article to agree together that they will do what they can to put a stop to them and preserve peace? Certainly the hell of bad wars cannot be eliminated by the nations doing nothing about it; and if they do anything, what less can they do than agree to ask their Council to advise upon the best means to deal with a case that may arise?

As a matter of fact the United States has for nearly a hundred years been working under a law which embodies about the same principle, and is fully as dangerous as Article X, namely the Monroe Doctrine. What is this famous policy? As originally announced by President Monroe it was a statement to the world that the United States would consider as an unfriendly act any intervention of European powers in the affairs of the Latin American republics. The doctrine has come to mean the assertion of a virtual paramountcy by the United States over the Western hemisphere. As has been said: "There is no contingency possible under the operation of Article X that may not arise under the Monroe Doctrine—a doctrine that compels the United States to throw an army in the field in case South or Central America is attacked—even sending our troops to European soil if need be—and all this alone and without a single ally." Having assumed a greater obligation, why stumble at a less? Let us very briefly consider some of the objections made to Article X.

1. It is said this Article X pledges us to keep the world in status quo and under it no change in territorial boundaries would be possible. It does nothing of the kind, but refers only to wars of external aggression for the purpose of robbing another state's territory or destroying its existence. Under it there can be a revolution within the state, there can be a union with other nations to form a new state, there can be any change that may be made by the self-determination of the citizens such as voluntary concessions to another nation, and there can be any changes that may be affected through courts of arbitration. It relates entirely to external and not at all to internal aggression. It does not, therefore, as Mr. Root says, "enforce perpetually" the "decision of Mr. Wilson and his associates in the year 1919," for any of the new states created can make any changes their people wish, or any changes their people in conference with other states agree upon.

2. Mr. Root also objects on the ground, "It is an attempt to impose by force the judgment of the rulers of the present generation upon all future generations." The absurdity of this statement is shown by the provision in Article 1, that "any member of the league may after two years, notice of its intention to do so, withdraw from the League," and by the provisions of Article XXVI making any kind of amendments possible.

3. The objection is made that the article in question pledges us to use our military force in any part of the world on matters with which we have no concern and hence would create wars rather than settle them. This criticism persistently overlooks the fact that Article X is limited to wars of external aggression for the purpose of robbing territory or destroying another nation's independent existence. Have not wars of this kind been the worst in history, are they not uniformly vicious and to be universally condemned? If a nation has a territorial grievance, is it not wiser to appeal to the League for a reopening of the claims, and abide by the decision of the representatives of the world rather than plunge into a war? Article X does not commit the members of the League to wars in unknown future contingencies, but only to try to prevent wars in the known contingency of trying to gain territory by force rather than honorable and just means.

But what are the probabilities that Article X will involve us in wars all over the world. First there is no positive agreement to go to war in the article. There is an agreement to try and check wars of aggression. There is an agreement to refer any such case to the council for advice. There is the implication that the advice will be accepted but no such agreement. The Council, if governed by the underlying principles of the League, will resist to all other means before bringing military pressure to bear, such as protests, warnings, offers of arbitration, economic boycott which no nation could long stand; and if there is no other way to control the offender it might advise a combined military operation; but even then Congress would be free to accept or reject the advice, advise mark you, not command. The boycott will in every case be sufficient, for no nation can live when denied food, raw materials and trade relations with other powers. Second, there is no danger of war under Article X, for no people on earth would be willing to face the overwhelming force of the combined military forces of the nations of the earth intent on punishing it for the violation of its covenant. Nor would it be willing to face the moral approbrium of the world in a war of aggression for purposes of stealing territory or destroying another nation's existence. Third, this is rendered more certain by the fact that the League provides that nations shall be disarmed, only being given such military strength as may be necessary for internal protection. The great war machines of the past are over. Nations will not have the military forces and equipment to go into wars of aggression. Fourth, the vitality of the League in making improbable wars of aggression is seen in the workings of the Monroe doctrine. For nearly 100 years we have kept all European nations from wars of aggression on the Western hemisphere by the threat that the United States would regard such a war as an unfriendly act. If the United States can preserve peace by such a threat, certainly the combined powers of the world can do so by the warning of Article X. Fifth, there is another provision which abundantly protects the United States from being involved in any war into which it does not choose to enter. Article X says in case of a war of external aggression the Council shall advise by what means the nations in the League shall act. The Council is composed of nine men, five of whom are chosen by their governments and four by the Assembly. Of the five the United States chooses one. This representative would act under the instructions of our government and will vote as our government desires him to do on all matters of importance. But Article X provides that discussions at meetings of the Council "shall require the agreement of all the members." This means that our representative by a dissenting vote can annul any proposed proceeding. This absolutely secures our government from being forced into any war without its consent. If Congress is afraid that our representative may act on his own initiative, or by the word of the President, it has two possible checks, namely it can pass an act that our representative shall never vote to involve us in war without the consent of Congress, and it can fall back on its constitutional privilege of refusing to accept the "advise" of the council in declaring war. Sixth, Article X should be read in connection with the seven articles which follow. These articles cover agreements to arbitrate disputes, to refer to an international court, to submit facts and testimony to the council for its judgment, and in short provide the machinery for the settlement of all kinds of differences, as well as state the procedure which shall enforce the keeping of the agreements. They lessen the probability of war materially. Article X provides for a remote emergency which may not have been provided for in the other articles of the Covenant.

Article X is a valuable feature of the League for it helps prevent the worst type of wars; it assures the nations that they will be safe if they weaken their defenses by the reduction of their armaments; it covers possible emergencies not provided for in the other articles; it helps protect France from what it fears most, a war of retaliation from Germany; it helps materially in working out the problems of reconstruction. Mr. Root some months ago plainly stated this fact. He said, "The allied nations in their council must determine the lines of reconstruction. Their determination must be enforced. They may make mistakes. Doubtless they will, but there must be decision and decision must be enforced. Under these circumstances the United States cannot quit. It must go on to the performance of its duty, and the immediate aspect of Article X is an agreement to do that."

UNCOVER BONES IN RUINS OF BARN FIRE

Believe Tramp Was Burned to Death in Fire Which Destroyed Building.

(Special to Post-Crescent)

New London—Franklin Bacon and Miss Dorothy Beckwith were married at Grand Rapids, Mich. Mr. Bacon was born in New London and is a son of Mrs. George Werner. He is a graduate of New London high school and holds the state university.

Mrs. William Marx was hostess at a dinner Wednesday evening in honor of her birthday anniversary. A family reunion was held, attended by a large number of relatives. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. O. Wickert and daughter Merna and son Harold of Appleton; Mrs. Sancel and daughter June; Mrs. Neubauer and Mrs. Redman of Oshkosh; Mrs. Oliver Brooks and the Misses Myrtle Wilke and Emma Neuman of this city. The parlor and dining room were decorated with cut flowers.

Potter 74 years old, a pioneer resident southwest of New London, died at his home Wednesday after an illness of one week. The survivors are his wife and several sisters, Mrs. McGregor of Omro; Mrs. Pace of Mukwa; and Mesdames R. Bulloph and N. Butler of New London. Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Lewis at the home Friday afternoon. Burial was in Floral Hill cemetery.

Miss Caroline Dexter and Charles Beggs were recently married at Fort Myers, Florida. The bride's former home was at Mukwa, but she had been employed by the Wisconsin Telephone company at Milwaukee for a number of years. Mr. and Mrs. Beggs will make their home in Florida.

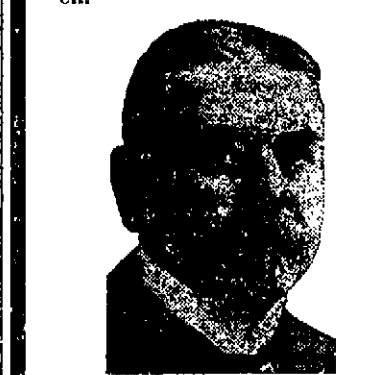

Richard Frank, a carpenter employed by the Edison company while working on a high frame, fell two stories. He suffered a broken cheek bone, lacerated arm, cut above one eye and several bad bruises.

Ever since the August Kemp building was destroyed by fire there has been a great deal of conjecture as to how the fire originated as the family was away from home at the time. Several days ago while disturbing the debris, a human skull was uncovered and further searching revealed a thigh bone and an arm bone and an Elgin watch in a silver case. As no one in the vicinity is missing, the family is

HARDING GAINS 3 STATES FROM COX

Rexall Straw Vote Shows Shifting of Support in Presidential Race.

The latest count in the Rexall straw vote shows new gains for Senator Harding. He has succeeded in taking three states away from Gov. Cox—Delaware, Missouri and West Virginia. The race in each state is close but the senator seems to be gaining enough support to retain these states for the republican party. More than a million votes have been cast by the patrons of the 8,000 Rexall stores up to October 26.

The electoral vote now gives Harding 382 and Cox 149, a loss of 29 for Cox in the last week or two. Harding's total vote is 646,009 and Cox's, 430,931. California and New York give

The women are also strongly republican, supporting Harding over Cox in about the same proportion the men do. They give Harding 168,806 and Cox, 104,267, a total vote of 273,073. About one-fourth of the voting is being done by the women.

SILENT TEN YEARS, GETS HIS FREEDOM AT LAST

These folks are trying hard to give you the best telephone service in the world. EVOLVE NEW PLAN TO HANDLE CHEESE

Wisconsin Cheese Federation to Form $250,000 Warehouse Corporation.

Madison—After a two day session the officers and directors of the Wisconsin Cheese Producers' Federation, in conference with Edward Nordman and L. G. Foster of the Division of Markets, Dr. Charles McCarthy, who assisted in the organization of the original federation, Prof. Macklin and Hibbard of the University of Wisconsin and Charles A. Peterson, secretary of the Wisconsin Farm Bureau Federation, agreed upon a plan of reorganization to finance the handling of cheese on a cash basis.

It was agreed to use the present Wisconsin Cheese Producers' Federation as the sales organization, and to organize a new corporation as a warehouse company, with the sales officers and directors, to purchase the cheese from the factories. The new company will be incorporated for $250,000, of which $20,000 will be common stock, owned and held by the Federation and voted by the directors, and $248,000 preferred, which will be placed on the market and sold to the farmers and cheese factory operators.

The Federation will remain the same as at present, with local associations composed of the patrons of the factories. There are now 152 factories in the Federation, forty of them located about Spring Green and the remainder in Sheboygan county and vicinity. It was stated that 95 factories in the Marshfield district are waiting for the reorganization to be perfected when they are on foot, while movements are on foot to organize the factories about Dodgeville, Boscobel and Clintonville.

MILK PRICE FALLS CENT IN MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee Milk Price Lowest in Any City of Its Size in Country.

Milwaukee—Another drop of 1 cent in the price of milk, bringing the Milwaukee retail price to 11 cents a quart, effective on Nov. 1, was announced on Thursday.

Existing conditions warrant the reduction. It was stated by an official of the Griddle Dairy company, who made the announcement, it is expected that the reduction will be followed by other companies distributing milk here.

Reputation Maintained
This step maintains the reputation of Milwaukee for having the lowest milk price of any large city in the country, and follows a reduction of 1 cent in the price of pints, Oct. 15. Minneapolis, the city nearest Milwaukee in the retail price of milk, pays 14 cents a quart. Detroit and St. Louis pay 15 cents, and Chicago has paid the same, although it is understood that a reduction to 13 cents is to go into effect there the end of the month.

Association Fixes Price
"We do not know what the price of milk will be to the farmer after the first of November," said a Griddle official. "That will be fixed at the meeting of the milk producers' association. The fact that Milwaukee people get their milk at from 3 to 4 cents a quart below the prices paid in other cities, is due to the splendidly organized systems of distribution in this city."

GIRL JAIL SMASHERS GO TO STATE REFORMATORY

Watertown—Because Helen Goercke and Jeanette Wilson broke furniture and destroyed property in their cell in the Dodge county jail while awaiting trial on charges of larceny, they were committed to the industrial school for girls in Milwaukee by Judge Martin Lueck. The matron of the jail reported that the girls were indifferent about the charges, that they broke furniture and destroyed bedding in their cells and were otherwise incorrigible. The girls entered a plea of guilty.

'THIRD DEGREE' EVIDENCE STOLEN

Documents Accusing Kenosha
Police Disappear From Attorney's Office.

Kenosha—If papers relating to the case of Frank Lang which disappeared from my office on Wednesday, were stolen, it will make no difference to the case, as duplicates of all the documents are on file in the office safe," declared A. E. Buckmaster, attorney for Lang, whose charges that "a confession" of the murder of Charles Pauli created a sensation here several weeks ago.

May Have Mistaken Papers
"I would not say that the papers have been stolen," Mr. Buckmaster said. "I only know that they are gone. I may have mistaken them, but I could not find them in the place where I thought they were."

Disappearance of the papers, which contained evidence relating to Lange's charges of third degree methods by police officials, was reported on Wednesday.

Buckmaster has been urging Gov. E. L. Philipp and Judge E. B. Reiden to call a special grand jury to investigate official circles in Kenosha. Practically all of the documents which are missing, he said, related to Lange's charges against the police, and one of them was the accused man's affidavit in which told of the alleged beating by members of the force.

Says Pass Key Used
Buckmaster stated early on Wednesday that someone had gained access to his office through the use of a pass key, and that desks had been broken open.

The reported disappearance of the documents has revived speculation as to the possibility of a special grand jury being called. Several citizens have already asked Judge Reiden to take such a step.

L. MERLIN HULL, Secretary of State of the State of Wisconsin, do hereby certify that the following law is to be submitted to a vote of the people at a General election to be held in the several cities, towns, villages and election precincts of the State of Wisconsin on the first Tuesday of November, 1920, being the second day of said month.

But if the Congress of the United States shall hereafter by a valid act which shall become the law of the land and be paramount to any state laws on the subject, define the words "intoxicating liquors" as used in article 18 of the constitution of the United States, then and from the time such act of Congress becomes operative, shall be the definition thereof under this subdivision.

SECTION 1569-4. Pure grain alcohol, wines and other liquors, containing more than two and one-half per centum of alcohol by weight, may be manufactured in or imported into or exported from this state for medicinal, mechanical, scientific and sacramental purposes and sold for such purposes only and may be so sold as herein provided, and not otherwise. Deodorized alcohol may be freely manufactured and sold, provided its manufacture complies strictly with the laws now or hereafter enacted by Congress relative thereto and the rules and regulations issued by the department of internal revenue.

SECTION 1569-5. There is hereby created the office of "Prohibition Commissioner." On or before the sixteenth day of January, 1920, the governor shall, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint a suitable person as such prohibition commissioner. Such prohibition commissioner shall have his office in the capitol, at Madison, to be provided at public expense, and such officer shall hold his office for the term of four years from and after the date of his appointment and until his successor shall be appointed. Any vacancy occurring in said office shall likewise be filled by executive appointment. The newspaper office of the Powers Publishing Tribune was destroyed, and nearby buildings were badly damaged.

one of the fastest men in the squad was sent to the Emergency hospital with a laceration torn away from a hip muscle. Later Schroeder, one of the strong guards was severely injured and may not be back for even the Lawrence game. But to offset these injured men Coach McCormick has Norcott, the fast end, back in the squad and is said to be developing material which has not yet been used except in scrimmage games.

state of Wisconsin and in addition the persons so offending shall be liable to all other penalties herein prescribed.

SECTION 1569-8. No person who shall keep or have in possession for retail sale any non-intoxicating beverages as defined in section 1569-3 hereof shall at any time have in his possession or under his control in the building in which he conducts his business for selling or dispensing any such beverages any intoxicating liquor as defined in said section. The prohibition commissioner or his deputies shall have the right of access at all reasonable hours, without notice, to the premises, occupied by any such retail dealer in non-intoxicating beverages, to investigate if this provision is being violated.

SECTION 1569-9. No place in which non-intoxicating drinks or beverages, as defined in section 1569-3 hereof, are sold or dispensed for consumption upon the premises where sold, shall maintain a standing bar or counter at which any such drinks or beverages containing alcohol in any degree are permitted to be drunk or consumed by the purchaser. The common council of each village or town, or the village board of villages and the town board of towns for the purpose of regulating and enforcing the sanitary conduct of places in which non-intoxicating beverages as defined in section 1569-3 hereof are manufactured or sold may pass ordinances fixing the terms and conditions under which such places may be conducted and operated and may limit the number of such places, and the location of such such business or any part thereof may be conducted, and may require that any person who wishes to operate any such business shall first procure a permit (which permit may be revoked for failure to comply with the conditions of this act or any ordinances relating to said business). A fee of not more than one hundred dollars per annum may be exacted before the granting of such permit, and such fee shall be paid to the treasurer of the town or village in which such business is conducted. The commodities to be sold under such permit may be separated into classes and a separate fee may be exacted for each class not exceeding in all the maximum of one hundred dollars.

It shall be the duty of the treasurer of each town, village or city in this state wherein a fee is collected for a permit as herein provided, to remit to the state treasurer within sixty days after such fee is collected five per cent of the total amount collected, and such moneys when so received by the state treasurer shall be set aside and constitute a separate fund for the payment of salaries and other expenses of the prohibition commissioner, and in carrying on the work connected with the enforcement of this act.

SECTION 1569-11. Whenever a number of the qualified electors of any town, village or city or more than ten per centum of the number of votes cast therein for governor at the last general election shall present to the clerk thereof a petition in writing signed by them praying that the electors thereof may have submitted to them the question whether or not any permit shall be issued under the provisions of this act to sell any non-intoxicating beverages as defined in section 3 hereof, containing alcohol in any degree whatsoever as a beverage and shall file such petition with the clerk at least one week prior to the first Tuesday of April next succeeding, such clerk shall forthwith make an order providing that such question shall be submitted on the first Tuesday of April next succeeding the date of such order. The city clerk making such order shall give notice of the election to be held on such question in the manner notice is given for the regular city election; town and village clerks who make such order shall give notice by posting and shall file such notice in at least five public places in the town or village not less than two weeks before the day of election. The election on such question shall be held and conducted and the returns canvassed in the manner in which elections in such city, town or village on other questions are conducted and the returns thereof canvassed. The result shall be certified by the canvassers in writing upon the determination thereof and be entered upon the records of the town, village or city, and shall remain in effect until another election is held for the same purpose.

The ballots upon the question so submitted shall be deposited in a separate box in each town and election district and shall contain the words "For permit" and "Against permit" and shall otherwise conform with the provisions of subsection 8 of section 623. If a majority of the ballots cast upon such question be "Against permit" no permit shall be unlawful for any person to sell or traffic in any of the beverages defined in section 1569-3 of this act as non-intoxicating which contain any alcohol whatsoever in the town, village or city so voting "Against permit" and any permit granted or issued therein so long as the result of such election shall remain unreversed by another election held for the same purpose shall be void, but if a majority of the ballots cast shall be "For permit" it shall be lawful for the town board, village trustees or common council, as the case may be, to grant permit for the sale of such beverages.

The provisions of this act shall not authorize the sale of beverages containing alcohol in any town, village or city in this state where such sale is now illegal until an election shall have been had under the provisions hereof permitting such sale under the conditions in this act prescribed.

SECTION 1569-12. Manufacturers and chemists who use alcohol for industrial and scientific purposes or in the manufacture of products not suitable for use as an intoxicating beverage, superintendents of hospitals, museums, laboratories, educational institutions, dentists, physicians and persons for lawful purposes, may secure a permit from the prohibition commissioner, authorizing the purchase and possession of alcohol and liquors for the purposes permitted by this act, upon making due application therefor in accordance with such rules and requirements as the prohibition commissioner may promulgate and upon filing a bond in such sum, not to exceed two thousand dollars, as in the discretion of the prohibition commissioner shall be required, conditioned that said alcohol and other liquors will be used only for the purposes stated in the application and permit and in accordance with law. Such permit may be revoked by the prohibition commissioner if the conditions thereof are not complied with, after notice is given to the holder of such permit to show cause why such permit should not be revoked.

SECTION 1569-13. This act shall not be construed to authorize the confiscation or seizure or make unlawful the possession of liquors defined in section 1569-3 hereof as intoxicating liquor, owned by individuals and possessed and kept for the individual use of the owners thereof at the time this act becomes operative; provided such liquors were lawfully purchased prior to private purposes and not for purposes unlawful sale, but all such liquors kept in the building in which such business is conducted, said section and on hand in the building where such business is conducted at the time this act becomes operative, or at any time subsequent thereto, shall be deemed contraband and subject to seizure by the prohibition commissioner.

SECTION 1569-14. In addition to the powers and duties conferred upon the prohibition commissioner by this act, he is authorized and empowered to make other and further reasonable rules and regulations relative to the possession of intoxicating liquors or drinks as beverages as herein defined, general in the application not inconsistent herewith, for the enforcement of the provisions of this act, and all such rules and regulations, including those herein specifically enumerated, shall have the force and effect of law.

SECTION 1569-15. All alcohol and intoxicating liquor as defined in section 1569-3 hereof shipped or carried into this state for any lawful purpose or use permitted by the terms hereof shall be plainly labeled on the outside description of the container of the liquor, the name of the consignor and consignor in plain letters in the English language. All such liquors not so labeled shall be forfeited to the state and be subject to confiscation by the prohibition commissioner and by him delivered to public state institutions for medicinal, mechanical or scientific use.

SECTION 1569-16. Premises occupied by the owner or by a tenant and used for the manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors as herein defined, and may be abated in an action brought in the name of the state on complaint of any citizen. No such action shall be maintained with respect to premises occupied by a tenant of the owner until notice of such violation of law is first given the owner and he has an opportunity to evict such tenant. Proceedings for such eviction must be instituted within ten days after notice and promptly prosecuted to judgment or any other order of the court. Upon final judgment that such nuisance exists, that part of the premises so used in violation of law shall be abated and an injunction issued permanently restraining their use for any purpose contrary to law and the owner may be required to give bond in such amount as the court may deem adequate that said premises be kept thereafter so abated and declared a nuisance will not thereafter be used for the purpose of manufacturing or transporting intoxicating liquors.

SECTION 1569-17. No person shall advertise, sell, deliver or have in possession any preparation, compound or tablet manufactured for the purpose of adding the same to or mixing the same with a non-intoxicating beverage or drink from which intoxicating liquors as defined in section 1569-3 hereof can be made, unless he has a permit from the prohibition commissioner authorizing such possession, sale or advertisement.

SECTION 1569-18. The provisions of this act shall not be construed to prevent:

(1) The manufacture, sale and keeping and storing for sale by any person having a permit of any medicinal preparation manufactured in accordance with formulae prescribed by the United States Pharmacopoeia or national formula or any patent or proprietary remedy in conformity with the laws of this state, unless such medicinal preparations are suitable for beverage purposes.

SECTION 1569-19. Any person who shall vend, sell, deal or traffic in, or for the purpose of evading any law of this state, give away intoxicating liquor as herein defined, except as herein provided, or violate any other provision hereof or any lawful order made under the provisions of this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars and not more than five hundred dollars, by imprisonment for not exceeding six months or by both such fine and imprisonment, at the discretion of the court. And in the event of a second conviction for any such offense within one year may be punished by a penalty equal to double the maximum penalty prescribed for a first offense.

SECTION 1569-20. There is hereby appropriated a sufficient sum to provide for the payment of salaries and compensation of said prohibition commissioner, his deputies and employees and to carry this act into effect, not exceeding fifteen thousand dollars in all in any one year.

SECTION 1569-21. If at any time after the passage of this act the eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States shall become void and of no effect, then and in such case and from the date said amendment is declared to be or becomes void and of no effect this act shall be null and void and shall cease to have any force or effect. In the event hereof shall again become operative and of full force and effect.

SECTION 4. The question whether the provisions of this act shall continue to be in force and effect from and after January 1, 1921, shall be submitted to the people of this state in the manner provided by law for the submission of an amendment to the constitution at the election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday, in November, 1920. If approved by a majority of the votes cast upon that question, it shall continue of force and effect from and after January 1, 1921, otherwise it shall cease to be of force and effect and become null and void.

Upon the ballot shall be printed: "Shall chapter— (insert on the ballot the number of the chapter) of the laws of 1919 entitled (insert the title of the act) be continued of force and effect?"

SECTION 5. This act takes effect as above provided, subject, however, to all provisions contained for its submission to the people for their ratification or rejection.

DORT

Quality Goes Clear Through

New Evidence For the Dort

Each day contributes added evidence of the high excellence of Dort performance.

Each Dort that goes into service begins anew to pile up fresh proof in favor of the car.

Rising prices in every field have given new value to the car that is economical in use of gas and oil, and that gets extra mileage from tires.

And the car that stands up and rarely needs overhauling or tuning up is especially attractive.

It is the high standard of the Dort in both these respects—economy and durability—that makes it such an intensely desirable investment.

There have been records kept of the mileage Dort gives, under average use, per gallon of gas and quart of oil.

There have been statistics gathered as to the exact service tires give on its wheels.

There have been tabulations made as to the average cost per owner for repair parts.

All these records are surprisingly low.

Their truth is confirmed by the actual statements of owners and by the published results of public, competitive tests. They prove as nothing else could prove quite so pointedly that the Dort is a preferred investment.

Today it has more friends than yesterday. Tomorrow it will have more friends than today.

And so it goes on—an ever-widening circle of good will toward a car that is daily demonstrating anew its right to the title "the best buy in its field."

We are receiving requests daily for demonstration drives and we would like very much to arrange one for you.

Just A Sample of What Red Cross Does Daily

Dozens of Requests for All Kinds of Service Are Received Daily.

What takes place every day at the Red Cross office?

Many people who are not in close touch with the activities of the Outagamie chapter would like to know the nature of the service performed, especially since the health center was opened and the home service office combined with it. A review of the day's work by Mrs. E. W. Wells, county secretary, shows what a varied program confronts the staff.

Miss Elizabeth Nienhaus, city Red Cross nurse, and Miss Bertha Schultz, county nurse, both call at the office at eight o'clock. The former equips herself for the day by making her calls about the city in an automobile recently provided for her by the chapter.

Miss Schultz usually finds a small amount of office routine confronting her before she starts for the rural districts with her automobile. She probably finds a letter from a school teacher asking her to visit there promptly to examine pupils which the teacher believes may have defective eyesight or hearing, or are underweight or ailing. She may also receive a request from someone in the county having tuberculosis, asking her to make arrangements for his entry into the sanatorium.

Replies to these communications are dictated to Miss Edna VanRyzin, clerk of the health center. Mayhap a letter is addressed to the state school for crippled children to arrange for admission for corrective work. Notifications are also sent to county school boards naming the date of her visit to a school. This done, she fills her nursing case with supplies and leaves for some county school.

An ex-service man probably enters shortly after the arrival of Miss Marie Roemer, Red Cross registrar, asking that a compensation claim be filed because of his disability. To file this claim she must make a copy of his discharge, and marriage certificate, and he is then sent to a United States public health physician for examination. Several others probably want applications for victory medals, which means filling the blanks and making extracts of the discharges to be sent to the recruiting office at Chicago. Another probably wants the beneficiary of his war risk insurance changed, which means a letter to the bureau at Washington.

A telephone call for Miss Nienhaus will probably come in and she will be directed to a home where a child is ailing and the mother does not know what course to take. She may also be called to a home where a boy's hand injured in a fall needs to be bandaged. She returns to the office to write records of all calls made after she has made her morning rounds to give baths, change surgical dressings or make instructive visits.

Mrs. Wells also finds a busy day ahead. Part of her time is probably taken up in conference with P. Frank, county chairman, or other officials concerning Red Cross policy or activities. She may also have arranged a loan to an ex-service man from the county who wishes to find employment out of town.

The wife of an ex-service man may be seen entering the office to say she has not received her compensation. A letter is written to the proper authorities by Miss Roemer stating the facts and asking for a speedy adjustment.

There are requests for service of almost every kind at all times of the day. An ex-service man may want to get in touch with a public health physician. The physician may telephone for the claim number of an ex-soldier wanting compensation. Friends of ex-service men may call to swear affidavits to assist him in claiming compensation for a dependent mother. Letters arrive from the United States Public Health service, probably wanting the address of a man whom they want to provide with transportation for an examination by an outside specialist. Letters from the insurance bureau are also arriving and need attention.

Calls come in frequently for the nurses. Patients also come in each day to have wounds redressed. Bandages are usually prepared in advance for expected patients. Requests come in for information about the clinic on Thursdays. Cases must be taken up by Mrs. Wells with Judge Dettensack concerning dependent children, and it usually requires a trip to the home where the child is being temporarily cared for. Work on the community survey and approaching roll call also take up a portion of the time.

Constantly at work for the welfare of anybody in the county needing help of any kind, the Red Cross is doing a work provided by no other organization. Its program is not restricted to 1 or two lines of activity, but lends itself readily to any form of social service. Its achievements seem to be conclusive evidence that the people of Outagamie county will help their fellow beings by supporting the annual Red Cross roll call, which is to start November 11 and continue until Thanksgiving.

INTERLAKES HOLD ATHLETIC RALLY

Basketball and Bowling Are Stimulated at Banquet at Y. M. C. A.

Inter-department and inter-factory athletics received a new impetus at the semi-annual banquet of the Interlake Athletic association Thursday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Plans were made for a record basketball year and interest in bowling was also stimulated. About 80 men employed at the Interlake mill were present.

Brief addresses were given by John T. Purves, general superintendent, Frank Youngman, president of the athletic association, C. B. Peterman, a member of the athletic board, and R. L. Gregory, captain of the basketball team. Mr. Youngman presided at the meeting. Music was furnished by the Lawrence college orchestra.

Athletic plans for the fall and winter season were discussed. The association has entered a team in the Interfactory Basket Ball league and intends to play an independent series of games and in addition will meet some of the best teams in its class from outside Appleton. Some of the entries include Milwaukee Industrial league cagers, University of Wisconsin, St. Norbert at DePere, Oshkosh Normal, Green Bay Tuffers and others.

Fourteen men are trying out for the team. Some of them are former Lawrence students and there are also several high school men. The present plan is to meet the Lawrence five two nights a week in practice. Training will be under direction of Mr. Youngman, who was former captain and forward of the University of Wisconsin team. Coach McChesney of Lawrence will probably assist. The team will have all new equipment.

Bowling will be one of the features of the athletic program. An effort will be made to interest a large number of mill employees in tournaments this winter. Six teams are already rolling. The Millwrights are in the lead and the other teams in order of their standing are office force, electrical department, machine room, pipe fitters and wood room. Games are rolled each Monday evening.

The association plans to carry out the biggest athletic program ever attempted this year. There are about 150 members in the organization now. It is directed by an athletic board of five members, chosen from the office force and the mill.

One of the aspirations is to send representatives to the national industrial tournament at Akron, Ohio, at the end of the season. The first big basket ball game will probably be played at the armory December 4.

EXPECT HUNDREDS AT LEGION MEET

Record Attendance is Looked for at Booster Meeting Monday Evening.

One of the largest meetings ever held by the Oney Johnston post of the American Legion is anticipated for Monday evening. The program is to start promptly at 7:30 o'clock at the new meeting place, Elk hall.

The entertainment committee has spread invitations broadcast among all ex-service men of this vicinity, announcing it as an open meeting to which they are all invited regardless of whether they are members or not. Each member has been urged to bring a "buddy" who is not a member. Preparations are being made for at least 400.

Attorney Ryan Duffy, Fond du Lac, is to be the speaker. He will tell what the American Legion is, what it stands for and what it intends to do. He promises a talk that will interest every ex-soldier.

The ladies of the Service Star Legion will also be present. One of their number will present an official flag to the post. They will also serve the buffet luncheon afterward, consisting of coffee, sandwiches, and cake. Several musical selections are to be rendered.

It was the plan of legion officials to have State Commander Pendahl, Kenosha, here in the evening. He wrote that he was unable to spend an evening here, but would arrive at 11:30 o'clock Monday morning and would be obliged to leave for Marinette shortly after two o'clock. A noon luncheon with officers of the post has been arranged, at which they will confer with him.

The entertainment committee is already working on its next big event, a smoker for the dads of the ex-service men. This will be the first meeting of its kind and will probably be held early in December.

FIND MOONSHINE STILL IN TOWNS EAST OF LAKE

Fond du Lac—Federal agents in a series of raids in this and surrounding counties have captured considerable liquor during the last week. Several days ago two raids were made in this county, one in the city and one in the rural districts. At the latter raid no arrests were made. The still and part of the confiscated liquor was taken to Milwaukee. Last week federal agents raided the home of Frank Decanski, near Chilton, and captured a still. Ten gallons of whiskey and 100 gallons of mash, as well as 150 gallons of apples in the process of fermentation, were taken.

REALTY TRANSFERS

Alderman A. W. Leas has sold a farm in the town of Dale to Ransom R. Griswold for a consideration of $15,000. The deed was recorded at the office of register of deeds Friday. Other deeds recorded the same day were: Joachim Brandt to Henry Froelich and R. H. Gohrke, land in Black Creek, consideration, $3,000; Kimberly Real Estate company to John Schmitt, lot in Kimberly, consideration, private; George Vandenberg to Kimberly Real Estate company, land in Little Chute, consideration, private; Omar Servais to Mary H. Silverwood, 10 acres in Ononda, consideration private.

In Chilton the raiders visited several saloons. At the Jacob Groves saloon they seized twenty-five gallons of whiskey.

A still was unearthed in the brickyard at Stockbridge. It was one of the most complete stills yet found. The raiders also obtained a number of gallons of mash. The still was destroyed.

MAKING PLEDGES WITH THE PEOPLE

JOHN J. BLAINE
Republican Candidate for Governor.

JAMES THOMPSON
Independent Candidate for U. S. Senator

WHERE BLAINE STANDS
Ada James, women suffrage leader, says: Blaine was one of the first public men to come out boldly for woman suffrage. His private life and his home life are above reproach. Senator Sanborn says: I believe from long acquaintance that Blaine will make a good Governor. F. M. Wilcox, Industrial Commissioner, says: Blaine is clean, able, fearless—he is the kind of man you like to tie to. Mrs. William Kittle, ex-president Consumer's League says: I always found Blaine interested in women and children welfare. J. D. Beck, ex-labor commissioner: Blaine is as clean as a hound's tooth.

Tom Morris, ex-lieutenant Governor, says: Blaine has always stood fearlessly for progressive principles.

John J. Blaine: I have made no secret deal, no secret pledge, and will make none. I shall deal frankly with the people.

THOMPSON AGAINST LEAGUE

Mr. Thompson says: I had rather be right than be regular. Lenroot declared in Congress repeatedly that he was for the League of Nations. He twice voted to put this country into the League. He will do it again. I am against the League with or without reservations. It means conscripting our boys for foreign wars.

Lenroot voted for the Esch-Cummins law. That law taxes every home—it unjustly burdens every woman, every man in the land. The people pay the freight. It is a tax on everything they eat, or wear or use. It was dictated by the money power for the money power. I will vote for its repeal.

If you want a real, red blooded progressive man for Governor vote for John J. Blaine.

If you are against the League of Nations and the Esch-Cummins law vote for James Thompson. Find his name in the independent column and make a cross after it.

MAROONS TACKLE OHIO STATE TEAM

Chicago Will Have to Step Lively to Stop Wilce's Big Eleven.

By United Press-Associated Wire Chicago.—The Chicago University eleven will meet the Ohio State football team on Stagg field here tomorrow for the first time in the history of the two schools.

Jack Wilce has developed a powerful eleven, as shown in the game against Wisconsin last Saturday and the maroons will have to show considerable improvement to remain in the race for the big ten championship.

Coach Williams, of Minnesota, will send his squad against the great team developed by Zuppke at Illinois. The Minnesota team has had a two weeks' rest since they were beaten by Indiana and Williams and may have developed a new aggression which could give the Illini a hard fight.

Northwestern and Indiana, who beat Minnesota and who also have been whipped this season, will clash at Indianapolis.

Wabash and Purdue will play at Lafayette to settle a local Hoosier quarrel. Michigan plays Tulane.

WANT LAWRENCE TO JOIN MINOR 'BIG 10' CONFERENCE

By United Press-Associated Wire Chicago.—Small mid-western colleges plan to form a conference along the lines of the big ten and will meet here early in December to organize. The move is sponsored by Knox College of Galesburg, Ill.

Schools invited to join are Wabash, Carleton, DePaul, Beloit, Knox, Coe, Lawrence and Cornell.

KICKING TACKLES FEATURE 1920 GAME

Several Big Eastern Teams Depend on Toes of Linemen for Points.

(By Henry L. Farrell) New York.—Kicking tackles are reaching the proportions of a vogue on the gridiron this fall.

Seven major universities depend almost exclusively on the skilled toes of stars tackles to supply the important goals from touchdowns.

These important point-getters are Keck of Princeton, Gulick of Syracuse, King of the navy, Faxon of Harvard, Dodge of Cornell, Johnson of West Virginia, and Risley of Indiana. Keck, King and Faxon do all the kicking off for their teams. Keck and King, in addition, kick from placement.

King Not Up To Form King, the navy star, who defeated the Army last fall with two goals from placement, is not up to the form that characterized his last year's work.

What advantage a consistent goal kicker like Keck or Weaver at Center college gives to a team can be realized from an analysis of Saturday's games.

Four battles were lost because a kicker failed to make a goal after touchdown. As a whole the crop of drop kickers and punters this season is not of the bumper variety that marked last season.

Joe Scheerer, who averages sixty yards to a boot, is the best punter on the gridiron this fall. His talent is a distinct advantage to Princeton as was shown in Saturday's game with the navy. One of the most glaring weaknesses of the midshipmen is the utter lack of a punter of high school ability. Center also showed a weakness in the same department against Harvard by not having any one to take the place of Roberts when he hurt his kicking leg.

Drop Kickers Few Drop kickers are not any too numerous. Fletcher of Illinois is up to his last season's form and Ohio State seem to have developed a talented kicker in Quarterback Workman.

Harvard has Buell, but he can do nothing but kick. Young Frank Murphy, who gained undying fame by going into the Harvard and Yale games as a substitute last year and kicking a field goal each time, is still Princeton's threat for tight places. Yale in Thorne Murphy, has the making of a real star.

The season, however, is just half way on the course and there's plenty of time remaining for a host of capable kickers to show themselves.

JENNINGS TO ASSIST M'GRAW WITH GIANTS

By United Press-Associated Wire New York.—Hughie Jennings, as future manager of the Giants, was predicted in baseball circles here today following the announcement the former manager of the Detroit Tigers had been signed as assistant manager of the New York club.

Jennings will take the place made vacant by the release of Johnny Evers who has taken over the reins of the Chicago Cubs.

Mrs. A. Kloss returned Thursday from a four months' visit with relatives in Montana and S. Dakota.

W. D. Harchmeyer of Sheboygan, was in Appleton on business Thursday.

WILLIE JACKSON WANTS TO MEET MR. LEONARD

By United Press-Associated Wire New York.—Willie Jackson, the last side lightweight, has his eyes set on the lightweight crown of Benny Leonard today.

Jackson knocked Eddie Fitzsimmons out last night in the tenth round of a scheduled 15 round bout in Madison Square Garden.

In the semi-windup Ralph Brady, Syracuse, was pounded all over and out of the ring several times by Billy Defoe of St. Paul, who won the decision.

Tex Ricard, promoter of the garden, announced that Jackson and Champion Leonard would meet for the title early in December.

BOOM COUNTRY PRICES ARE FALLING RAPIDLY

By United Press-Associated Wire Dallas, Texas.—Inflated prices have been punctured in the southwestern "boom country," wholesalers of men's and women's apparel and drygoods declared here today.

Reductions of from 25 to 50 per cent on practically all classes of goods have been reached through gradual reductions the last month, a half dozen firms reported. Where retailers have attempted to hold up prices despite the wholesale drops luxuries are becoming practically an unsalable commodity, especially in smaller cities and towns, it was admitted.

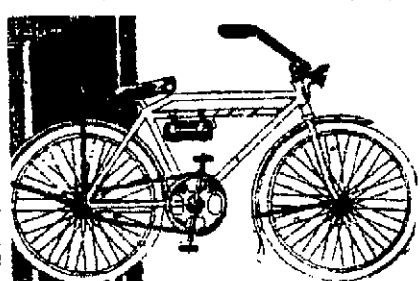

Unless retailers take their losses now, they may be forced to stand greater ones later, was the consensus of opinion of wholesalers canvassed. The public, they said, has demonstrated it will not buy if prices are maintained high, forcing still lower levels.

BRITISH LEADERS SURE COAL STRIKE IS SETTLED

By United Press-Associated Wire London.—British leaders were certain today the coal strike had been settled. The government applauded the settlement agreement especially the recognition by owners and miners of the necessity for a greater output.

The terms make it an object to both to increase production. By slow process of balloting, it was believed work cannot be resumed before Nov. 8. Leaders of the federation believed the agreement would be ratified. Individuals will rely on the judgment of their loaders, officers believed.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

1. Senators Lodge, Penrose, Du Pont, Smoot, Johnson, Borah, McCormick, Watson, Harding and others, make up the Senatorial ring of bosses, who picked Harding during the 1916 Republican Convention as the party candidate in 1920. They are now opposed to the League of Nations.

They oppose the League, as a "cover" for a deeper purpose. They are using their opposition to the League of Nations, to hide the real purpose of their desire to get control of Congress and the White House. This is proven when they admit that they are in favor of an "international association that will guarantee peace."

The real purpose of these Republican bosses is to hide their desire to revise the income tax laws; the corporation tax law; the excess profits tax law; the capital stock law, so that the taxes for federal needs will be switched from the rich men, their corporations, their income from stock dividends and bond interest, to the salaried voter; the working man; the middle classes and the farmers.

Anybody who has read the League of Nations Covenant knows that this conspiracy of this Senatorial oligarchy, has used falsehoods, deceit, mis-

The "FOURTEEN POINTS" are in the League of Nations and the Treaty of Peace

Point 1, is covered by Article 18 in the League Covenant. It demands open diplomacy.

Point 2, is covered in Article 22, (c) in the Covenant and it entrusts to the League of Nations the task of developing a sea code, guaranteeing the freedom of the seas.

Point 3, is covered in Article 23 of the Covenant, also and demands equality in trade conditions.

Point 4, is covered in Article 8 and 9 of the Covenant and demands reduction in armaments.

Point 5, is covered in Article 21 in the Covenant, and pertains to the Colonies of Germany.

Point 6, pertains to Russia. "The situation in Russia at the time of the Paris Peace Conference was such that no progress could be made. Russia did not participate in the conference.

Point 7, pertains to the restoration of Belgium. The restoration of Belgium is provided for in the Treaty of Peace, which goes into force, through the Covenant of the League of Nations, by virtue of Belgium being a signatory to the covenant of the League.

Point 8, pertains to the restoration of Alsace Lorraine to France. This is also covered by the Covenant, because the Treaty of Peace disposes of this matter, and comes into force through France, be-

The original all-record phonograph without attachments

SUCH is The Brunswick, and part of its fame is due to this great innovation.

Until the coming of this noted instrument, most phonograph owners had to be content with a one-record instrument. Brunswick made this idea out of date.

There have been many attempts to equal The Brunswick, but devices and attachments never bring the desired result.

The Utona is part of The Brunswick, in-built. And it plays every record at its best.

Another exclusive feature is the Brunswick Tone Amplifier, built entirely of wood. It has no cast-metal throat, as is usual.

Brunsuick

This scientific tone amplifier, built according to acoustic laws, gives truer, richer tone. It reveals hitherto lost shadings.

Hear The Brunswick before you buy a phonograph. Note its unequalled tone, its superb cabinet work, its many betterments.

You will hardly believe all the good things they say about The Brunswick until you, yourself, hear it. Come in today.
